The current Geneseo English major requires at least one course in "Cultural Intersections" — a category that has variously been called "world," "non-traditional," and "multicultural" literature. What factors or issues need to be considered when this type of requirement is created?